On November 19, the folic acid market heated up rapidly, and the situation of supply exceeding demand intensified. Affected by the environmental protection inspection team, many manufacturers have stopped production, and the inventory is in a state of emergency, resulting in extremely tight supply. Since the manufacturers stopped quoting last Thursday, the market price of folic acid has quickly climbed to USD30.7-36.9/KG. At present, the domestic market demand is strong, and the feedback from the foreign market is not obvious for the time being, but the overall situation is that there is a market but no price.

AMINO ACID

02

Valine: Last week, the manufacturers' quotations were adjusted to a stronger level, and some of them stopped quoting. Domestic market inquiries have slightly increased. The end users did not have much inventory in the early stage, and some of them replenished on demand. There were some transactions in the market. Pay attention to the factory's order signing situation. It is expected that the price of valine will remain stable and rise slightly.

API

03

Florfenicol, due to rising raw material prices, the factory has further adjusted the price recently, and the delivery tension has intensified; most of the delivery dates are in January, and some factories have extended the delivery date to March. The current market price is USD25-26/KG, and it is expected to remain strong in the near future.

FOOD ADDITIVE

04

The price of potassium sorbate, a preservative product, remains stable, and all manufacturers deliver goods normally. The market transaction price of potassium sorbate is around USD2.3-2.4/KG. In the short term, the price of potassium sorbate will stabilize.
